Urgency of Change: The Krishnamurti Podcast.....	179

Introduction

The official Krishnamurti YouTube channel began in 2006. Since then, Krishnamurti Foundation Trust has been solely responsible for managing and producing its entire content of over 2,000 videos and audio recordings carefully stored in our state-of-the-art archives at Brockwood Park, UK. Every week, we continue to publish a previously-unreleased full-length audio recording, and a new topical video extract. All our content is offered free of charge and without adverts.

The Krishnamurti Foundation Trust Channel on YouTube started in 2011 and contains thousands of extracts carefully selected by the Foundation staff, as well as all the episodes of The Urgency Of Change Krishnamurti Podcasts. These podcasts are available on Apple Podcasts, the Krishnamurti Foundation Trust website, YouTube, and all major podcast platforms. Transcripts are available for many of the episodes at kfoundation.org/podcast.

This directory contains information about, and direct links to, all the video and audio extracts taken from J. Krishnamurti's talks and discussions currently on J. Krishnamurti - Official Channel and/or the Krishnamurti Foundation Trust Channel. Many more recordings will be added in the future and will be included in updated versions of the directory.

How to use this directory

You can consult the directory on a computer, tablet or phone and perform a word search to get information about recordings on specific topics. For phones and tablets, you might need to download a PDF reader app which allows word search. On a computer you can use CTRL + F (Windows) or COMMAND + F (Mac) when the document is opened to activate the search function.

You can directly go to a specific extract, podcast or full length recording by clicking on the link in the Table of Contents.

At the bottom of every page you will find Click here to return to the Table of Contents which allows you to go back to the beginning of the Table of Contents from anywhere in the document.

To watch or listen to a recording on YouTube, click on the links provided. Your device needs to be connected to the internet. To enable subtitles in YouTube, click on the gear icon (Settings), then select 'Subtitles/CC' and the language desired. Please note that auto-generated subtitles will contain errors.

Conditioning

The Krishnamurti Podcast - Ep. 11 - Conditioning - Krishnamurti with Mary Zimbalist

1

Audio - 31 minutes

Summary

Mary Zimbalist was Krishnamurti's assistant from the 1960s until his death in 1986. Her unfinished memoirs chronicling her time with Krishnamurti are online free of charge, and in the book In the Presence of Krishnamurti, which is available on our website kfoundation.org.

This conversation with Krishnamurti was recorded in 1984. Topics covered include:
Can the brain be free from all the programming it has received?

Is this possible through watching the very activity of thought?

Watchfulness makes the brain extraordinarily acute, sharp and clear. This clarity is freedom.

Conflict

The Krishnamurti Podcast - Ep. 47 - We live in conflict with everything - Krishnamurti with Linda Strawn

Audio - 99 minutes

Summary

Linda Strawn was a presenter at Pacifica Radio. This conversation with Krishnamurti was recorded in Ojai, California in 1984. Topics include:

Is it possible to look at the external and internal simultaneously?

Why does the brain immediately create images when meeting someone?

Is there security psychologically?

Is it possible to uncondition the brain?

As long as you are conditioned, do what you will outwardly, nothing is going to change man.

I see nationalism is a danger, so I move away from danger.

Our brains are occupied all the time and so our energy is limited.

If you change, deeply, profoundly, it affects the consciousness of man.

Psychologically, do not depend on anybody.

Consciousness/Change/Thought/Observer

The Krishnamurti Podcast - Ep. 17 - The circus of man's struggle - Krishnamurti with Alain Naude 1

Audio - 60 minutes

Summary

Alain Naude was Krishnamurti's private secretary in the 1960s. He met Krishnamurti in 1963 whilst a music lecturer at Pretoria University and a professional concert pianist. He gave up his teaching and performing in 1964 to work with Krishnamurti. Fluent in several languages, he was very helpful at international gatherings and in attracting younger audiences to Krishnamurti's talks at a time of cultural change in the West.

This conversation with Krishnamurti was recorded in Malibu, California in 1972 and begins by asking: Why do we divide the world as the human being and the divine?

When I realise that my consciousness is the consciousness of the world, and the consciousness of the world is me, whatever change takes place in me affects the whole of consciousness.

Can human consciousness undergo a radical change?

To find out if there is something beyond this consciousness I must understand the content of consciousness.

The mind must go beyond itself.

Do we realise that the observer is the content itself? If there is no thought, there is no thinker.

If the observer is the observed, what is the nature of change in consciousness? Will is not the factor of change.

Radical revolution in consciousness takes place when there is no conflict at all.

Death

The Krishnamurti Podcast - Ep. 34 - Living with death - Krishnamurti with Pupul Jayakar 4

Audio - 63 minutes

Summary

This conversation from 1981 between Krishnamurti and Pupul Jayakar looks at ending and death. What is ending? The mind cannot enter into a totally new dimension if there is a shadow of memory. If the movement of thought ends, consciousness as we know it is not. Thought is the enemy of compassion. What significance has death? Have we seen the meaning of death, the extraordinary beauty of ending something?

Pupul Jayakar, was a trustee of Krishnamurti Foundation India, and for decades was a friend of Krishnamurti's. She helped publish many of his books in India, along with writing a biography which was published soon after his death. Her other books include The Earth Mother, The Buddha and God is Not a Full-Stop.

The Krishnamurti Podcast - Ep. 48 - Is death a matter of continuity, or ending? - Krishnamurti with Ravi Ravindra

Audio - 68 minutes

Summary

This conversation between Krishnamurti and Ravi Ravindra was recorded in Ojai, California, in 1985. The inquiry includes:

What do we mean by energy?

The brain has tremendous energy.

Is it possible for me to know what happens when I die, without inventing theories?

Is all I have collected different from the 'I'?

The world is in disorder and 99% of people are disorderly.

We rarely ask what death is. What does it mean to die? How do you find out?

Ravi Ravindra was born in India and later moved to Canada. He holds a Ph.D. in physics and an M.A. in philosophy, and is professor of Comparative Religion at Dalhousie University in Nova Scotia. He met Krishnamurti in the 1960s and the two met formally and informally over the years. Among his many books, Two Birds on One Tree and Centred Self, focussing on his time with Krishnamurti.

Education

The Krishnamurti Podcast - Ep. 45 - On education - Krishnamurti interviewed by Fred Hall

Audio - 45 minutes

Summary

This interview with Krishnamurti was recorded for television in Ojai 1975, in the context of the foundation of The Oak Grove School. Questions asked include:

You are working toward the realisation of a new school in the Ojai Valley. Why another school?

Would you mind explaining the words: 'whole', 'sane' and 'holy'?

You say a school is a place where one learns both the importance of knowledge and its irrelevance. Can you explain 'irrelevance'?

I'd like to ask you about three more words: 'thought', 'love', 'death'.

You have travelled far and spoken often and have been heard by millions, and you have created several schools. Do you feel that you have made a dent, that you have communicated meaningfully with large numbers of people?

Fred Hall was editor of Ojai Valley News and a radio pioneer. He was known for his interviews with famous musicians, bandleaders and singers of the 1930s, '40s and '50s. He lived Ojai for over 40 years and his newspaper often featured articles on Krishnamurti.

Ego

The Krishnamurti Podcast - Ep. 27 -Is there a permanent ego? - Krishnamurti with Alain Naude 3

Audio - 51 minutes

Summary

Alain Naude was Krishnamurti's private secretary in the 1960s. He met Krishnamurti in 1963 whilst a music lecturer at Pretoria University and a professional concert pianist. He gave up his teaching and performing in 1964 to work with Krishnamurti. Fluent in several languages, he was very helpful at international gatherings and in attracting younger audiences to Krishnamurti's talks at a time of cultural change in the West.

This conversation with Krishnamurti was recorded in Malibu, California in 1972 and begins by asking whether there is a permanent 'me'?

Unless I am free from the vulgar, I will continue representing the whole vulgarity of humanity.

I lead the usual life, along the small river, following that current. I am that current and 'the me' is bound to continue in that stream, with millions of others. I am not different from those millions of others.

When you say, 'My brother is dead,' and ask whether he is still living, as a separate consciousness, I question whether he was ever separate from the stream.

If there was a permanent self, it would be of this stream. Realising that I am like the rest of the world, that there is no 'me' separate, I can incarnate only if I step out of the stream.

Change takes place away from the stream; in the stream there is no change.

What happens if you step out of the stream? The stepping out is the incarnation.

When one steps out of the stream, one has compassion.

Fear

The Krishnamurti Podcast - Ep. 12 - Fear - Krishnamurti with Mary Zimbalist 2

Audio - 31 minutes

Summary

In her early working life, Mary Zimbalist was a model and actress. She first heard Krishnamurti speak in the 1940s and in the 1960s began helping Krishnamurti, becoming his assistant and friend. Her memoirs chronicling her time with Krishnamurti are online free of charge, and form the book In the Presence of Krishnamurti, which is available at our online bookstore.

This second conversation with Krishnamurti concerns the topic of fear. They ask whether, in the very act of looking at fear, we can discover its origin.

Can we look at fear as we would an extraordinary jewel?

Can we not look at a particular branch of fear but at the whole nature, structure and quality of fear?

The Krishnamurti Podcast - Ep. 25 - Can fear be completely wiped away? - Krishnamurti with Ronald Eyre

Audio - 88 minutes

Summary

Ronald Eyre was a leading director for cinema, opera, television and the theatre. He was nominated for a Tony Award in 1975 as Best Director. He was also a television presenter and writer. His most well-known series was The Long Search, a survey of world religions.

Recorded at Brockwood in 1984, this conversation with Krishnamurti explores playfulness and distraction, the cycle of fear, and whether we do anything we love. Krishnamurti asks if we are afraid of life.

What are love and death?

Why is there such a tremendous craving inwardly?

What is the root of fear?

Why does thought enter into the realm of the psyche?

What is creation that is not born out of knowledge?

God

The Krishnamurti Podcast - Ep. 33 - On God - Krishnamurti with Pupul Jayakar 3

Audio - 83 minutes

Summary

This conversation between Krishnamurti and Pupul Jayakar was recorded at Brockwood Park in 1981.

Jayakar begins by asking if they can discuss and investigate into the nature of God. They go on to question whether we can negate completely the whole movement of knowledge – except the knowledge of driving a car, speaking a language, technological knowledge?

Can one totally empty the whole accumulation of a million years?

We never say, 'I don't know.' That is an absolutely motionless state of mind, because I don't know. One of our difficulties is that we all want to know; which means put what God is into the bag of knowledge.

Can we have an insight into the movement of knowledge, so that the insight stops the movement? It's not that we stop the movement or the brain stops the movement; the very insight is the ending of knowledge and the beginning of something entirely different.

Is it possible to quieten thought completely? Is it possible to be free of the meditator? Then there is no problem. Then there is no question whether there is God or no God – because it doesn't matter.

Then meditation is the meditation of the universe.

Pupul Jayakar, who died in 1997, was an Indian cultural activist and writer, best known for her work on the revival of traditional and village arts, handlooms, and handicrafts. She was a close friend of prime minister Indira Gandhi, and was her cultural advisor and biographer. Having been to a school established by Annie Besant, Pupul became involved with Krishnamurti's work in the 1940s, becoming a trustee of the Indian foundation.

Good/Evil

The Krishnamurti Podcast - Ep. 18 - On good and evil - Krishnamurti with Alain Naude 2

Audio - 57 minutes

Summary

Alain Naude was Krishnamurti's private secretary in the 1960s. He met Krishnamurti in 1963 whilst a music lecturer at Pretoria University and a professional concert pianist. He gave up his teaching and performing in 1964 to work with Krishnamurti. Fluent in several languages, he was very helpful at international gatherings and in attracting younger audiences to Krishnamurti's talks at a time of cultural change in the West.

This second conversation between Naude and Krishnamurti opens with the question: Do good and evil really exist or are they simply conditioned points of view? The inquiry looks at goodness as total order, not only outwardly but inwardly especially.

Is virtue the outcome of planning? You cannot will to do good. Either you are good or not good.

Will is the concentration of thought as resistance.

Are poisonous snakes, sharks and the cruel things in nature evil?

The moment we assert that there is absolute evil, that assertion is the denial of the good.

Goodness implies total abnegation of the self, because 'the me' is always separative.

Order means behaviour in freedom. Freedom means love.

When one sees all this very clearly there is a marvellous sense of absolute order.

Humanity/Future

The Krishnamurti Podcast - Ep. 4 - The Future of Humanity - Krishnamurti with David Bohm 1

Audio - 85 minutes

Summary

Part 1 of The Future of Humanity asks: what is the future of mankind? The pair discuss how our psychological problems are the result of thought, since thought breeds conflict. We think that thought can solve our problems but is this true? They look at how the self is put together by thought and whether our consciousness is individual to each of us, or inseparable, a consciousness of humanity. It is clear that dividing the world into countries and religions creates havoc, but is our very sense of self divisive? Why does division exist at all?

David Bohm has been described as one of the most significant theoretical physicists of the 20th century and was a fellow of the royal society. He worked with Einstein at the Institute for Advanced Study, and on the Manhattan Project with Oppenheimer. Later he pioneered research into quantum physics and models of the brain, being increasingly interested in consciousness, order and thought. His books include Wholeness and the Implicate Order, Science, Order and Creativity, and Causation and Chance in Modern Physics.

Bohm's contact with Krishnamurti began in the early 60s and continued into the 80s. Their dialogues are far-reaching and profound. Over 30 audios or videos are available on our YouTube channel at <https://bit.ly/2EfqsCU>, and are published in the books Truth and Actuality, The Transformation of Man, and The Ending of Time. Recorded in 1983, The Future of Humanity represents Bohm's and Krishnamurti's final dialogues together.

Audio - 70 minutes

Summary

The second and final part of The Future Of Humanity explores whether there is evolution of consciousness. Can the consciousness of mankind be changed through time? Is psychological conditioning centred in the self? Can our conditioned brain cells change? The pair then inquire into the relationship between the mind and the brain, suggesting that as long as the brain is conditioned, its relationship to the mind is limited. The then look at perception and intelligence.

Intelligence

The Krishnamurti Podcast - Ep. 15 - On Intelligence - Krishnamurti with David Bohm

Audio - 92 minutes

Summary

David Bohm has been described as one of the most significant theoretical physicists of the 20th century and was a fellow of the royal society. He worked with Einstein at the Institute for Advanced Study, and on the Manhattan Project with Oppenheimer. Later he pioneered research into quantum physics and models of the brain, being increasingly interested in consciousness, order and thought. Bohm's books include Wholeness and the Implicate Order, Science, Order and Creativity, and Causation and Chance in Modern Physics.

This relatively early conversation between Bohm and Krishnamurti centres around the relationship between thought and intelligence.

Thought is mechanical, measurable, a movement in time. Is intelligence mechanical and of time?

Does intelligence use thought?

Thought is a pointer; without intelligence the pointer has no value.

Politically, religiously and psychologically thought has created a world of tremendous contradiction and fragmentation.

Can life be guided by intelligence and lived in harmony?

The desire for intelligence has created the image of God.

Thought must be completely still for the awakening of intelligence. You come upon it when you see the whole. The quality of a mind that sees the whole is not touched by thought. Therefore there is perception and insight.

Krishnamurti/Jokes/Anecdotes

The Krishnamurti Podcast - Ep. 220 Krishnamurti's jokes and anecdotes

Audio - 75 minutes

Summary

The format of this episode is different to the usual selection of longer extracts. During the course of Krishnamurti’s talks and dialogues, he would sometimes include a joke, anecdote or parable, relevant to what was being said.

This episode compiles a collection of 26 of these from the 1970s and 80s, each one being much shorter than the usual extracts featured on the podcast.

Audio - 61 minutes

Summary

‘We saw the necessity of a new school. The meaning of the word ‘school’ is leisure, leisure in which to learn; and a place where students and teachers can flower as human beings, without fear, without confusion, with great integrity.’

This week’s episode on Krishnamurti Schools has six sections.

The first extract (2:39) is from the first question and answer meeting at Brockwood Park in 1980, titled: Why do you have schools and foundations?

The second extract (9:30) is from the first question and answer meeting at Brockwood Park in 1981, titled: Do your schools create an elite atmosphere?

The third extract (18:36) is from the third question and answer meeting in Ojai 1982, titled:

Why do people object to Krishnamurti schools?

The fourth extract (36:03) is from the second question and answer meeting at Brockwood Park in 1984, titled: Do your schools give students an understanding of the total human problem?

The fifth extract (45:50) is from a public discussion in Ojai 1975, titled: Can teachers and students uncondition themselves?

The final extract in this episode (51:22) is from Krishnamurti's fourth talk in Saanen 1974, titled: Can we end violence in our children?

Krishnamurti/Teaching

The Krishnamurti Podcast - Ep. 23 - Has there been a radical change in Krishnamurti's teaching? - Krishnamurti with Pupul Jayakar 1

Audio - 79 minutes

Summary

Pupul Jayakar, who died in 1997, was an Indian cultural activist and writer, best known for her work on the revival of traditional and village arts, handlooms, and handicrafts. She was a close friend of prime minister Indira Gandhi, and was her cultural advisor and biographer. Having been to a school established by Annie Basant, Pupul became involved with Krishnamurti's work in the 1940s, becoming a trustee of the Indian foundation.

This first conversation was recorded in 1978, at Brockwood Park. Pupul asks: Has there been a radical change in your teaching, a movement away from observation, from the division between the thinker and the thought? They ask whether it's possible to see the total content of consciousness and move out of it?

Complete, total insight is only possible instantly, and that instant is not contained in time.

The thinker and thought are not separate.

Thinking is based on growth, becoming, evolving.

Will the mind, being so heavily conditioned by the tradition of growth, listen?

The Krishnamurti Podcast - Ep. 43 - How does one inquire into the source of all life? - Krishnamurti with Pupul Jayakar 5

Audio - 91 minutes

Summary

This conversation between Krishnamurti and Pupul Jayakar was recorded at Brockwood Park in 1982. The inquiry includes:

What is the source of all existence, all life, all action?

What is the approach of a mind that wants to inquire into something that it doesn't know, something that demands an extraordinary quality of deep subtlety, deep capacity of order?

Why doesn't one feel totally responsible for the wars, the brutality, the terrible things that are happening in the world?

Human beings have created such disorder in themselves and therefore outwardly. How does one comprehend or be aware of the origin of disorder?

What is the state of action that is born out of complete attention?

Is it necessary to go through the process of watching one's reactions and observing diligently one's relationships?

Any person who gives attention, who really says, 'I must find the source of life,' who is passionate about it, not just casual, will listen. They will listen: it is in the air.

Living

The Krishnamurti Podcast - Ep. 41 - What is living, actually? - Krishnamurti with Donald Ingram Smith 2

Audio - 52 minutes

Summary

This conversation was recorded in Ojai, California in 1980. Subjects explored include: Our conditioning is irrational.

Will doubt help me to find out what truth is?

Is there a listening without the word, without recognition?

Thought can see itself in action.

We have got many toys which absorb us.

Is it possible to get rid of them?

An occupied mind is always limiting itself, narrowing its activity.

Donald Ingram Smith was a well-known Australian Broadcasting Corporation (ABC) broadcaster from Sydney. For many years he was involved with the recording of Krishnamurti's talks in Australia and India. He also hosted a radio programme on Krishnamurti. Ingram Smith first met Krishnamurti in 1949 and his memoirs of the times he spent with Krishnamurti through to his death are published in the book Creative Happiness: A Journey with J. Krishnamurti.

Masters/Hierarchy

The Krishnamurti Podcast - Ep. 28 - Masters and hierarchy - Krishnamurti with Alain Naude 4

Audio - 49 minutes

Summary

Alain Naude was Krishnamurti's private secretary in the 1960s. He met Krishnamurti in 1963 whilst a music lecturer at Pretoria University and a professional concert pianist. He gave up his teaching and performing in 1964 to work with Krishnamurti. Fluent in several languages, he was very helpful at international gatherings and in attracting younger audiences to Krishnamurti's talks at a time of cultural change in the West.

This fourth conversation between Naude and Krishnamurti was recorded in January 1972. Naude begins by asking about masters. 'One finds in various teachings the idea of masters, conscious entities who work for the good of mankind. Is there a reservoir of wisdom? Do such entities exist, or does man want to have myths?'

Krishnamurti responds that there is a reservoir of goodness and a reservoir of violence and asks whether there something which is not these two, that is beyond these two?

Is your mind capable of not being held in the reservoirs of goodness or violence?

When you understand these two opposites and go beyond them, meditation is not in terms of vision or action, but the state of silence which is then operating, an energy which then flows. That energy has no character.

When one asks, 'Is there a hierarchy, a master, a group of evolved entities?' you are asking from a point of view, or from desire, from hope.

What is the relationship between the current of vulgarity and that which is beyond and above the opposites?

Meditation

The Krishnamurti Podcast - Ep. 14 - Krishnamurti with Chogyam Trungpa Rinpoche

Audio - 40 minutes

Summary

Chogyam Trungpa Rinpoche was a Buddhist meditation master and a major figure in the dissemination of Buddhism to the West. He founded more than one hundred meditation centres throughout the world, including Naropa University in Boulder, Colorado, where Pema Chodron, Allen Ginsberg and Ken Wilber were among his many students. He wished to present the path of meditation in secular terms, developing a programme called Shambhala Training.

This conversation with Krishnamurti was recorded in San Diego, California in 1972. In it, the pair ask: what is the quality of the mind that is no longer held in the matrix of experience? What is meditation and why should one meditate? They inquire into seeing without the 'me', and the possibility of a total observation without time and memory.

Summary

This conversation between Krishnamurti and Titmuss was recorded at Brockwood Park in 1984. Krishnamurti asks:

What do we mean by the word 'meditation'?

Why should we meditate?

Do we need to be taught how to meditate?

Have we extended ambition from this world to the spiritual world?

Who is the controller that controls thought?

Christopher Titmuss, a former Buddhist monk, is a teacher and writer in the Buddhist tradition. He teaches and holds retreats in many countries around the world and many of his talks are available online. His books include The Buddha of Love, Light on Enlightenment, An Awakened Life and Poems from the Edge of Time.

Mind/Truth

The Krishnamurti Podcast - Ep. 40 - A mind that is not empty cannot find truth - Krishnamurti with Alain Naude 6

Audio - 80 minutes

Summary

This conversation between Krishnamurti and Naude was recorded in Malibu in 1972. Naude begins by asking: Are the various scriptures of India and the Middle East similar to or in contradiction to your teaching?

Krishnamurti later asks: Can thought end right through one's consciousness? Must thought not end for something new to be observed?

How does the mind look at itself? Does it look as an observer different from the observed, or without the observer and therefore there is only the observed?

Can consciousness empty itself of its content?

What has happened to the mind that has discarded the weight of becoming, of tradition, myth, gurus and authority?

A mind that has no space can never find truth. A mind that is not empty can never find truth.

Remaining with the fact of hurt.

When you are nothing, you love.

There is a movement in silence that has no beginning and no end, a movement that is always new.

Inquiry is different from effort, from seeking, from achievement.

Alain Naude was Krishnamurti's private secretary in the 1960s. He met Krishnamurti in 1963 whilst a music lecturer and concert pianist. He gave up his teaching and performing in 1964 to work with Krishnamurti. Fluent in several languages, he was very helpful at international gatherings and in attracting younger audiences to Krishnamurti's talks, at a time of cultural change in the West.

The Krishnamurti Podcast - Ep. 1 - Krishnamurti interviewed by Bernard Levin

Audio - 32 minutes

Summary

This interview with Krishnamurti was first broadcast in 1981. Recorded at Brockwood Park in Hampshire, as part of The Levin Interview TV series, it serves as a good introduction to Krishnamurti's work. Bernard Levin was one of Britain's best-known journalists.

Questions explored include:

Why don't we realise the damage we are doing in the world?

Is it wrong to seek happiness?

What is action?

What is right living?

Can society be changed? How is man to be free?

The Krishnamurti Podcast - Ep. 6 - Krishnamurti interviewed by Ross Saunders

Audio - 30 minutes

Summary

Krishnamurti Interviewed by Ross Saunders. This interview was recorded for the Australian television show 'This Day Tonight'. The programme is half an hour long and was recorded in 1970.

Describing the interview in her diary, Mary Zimbalist, Krishnamurti's assistant, said that Krishnamurti 'demolished belief and religion then went on with such fresh clarity until the end of the half hour, covering a great deal with simplicity and eloquence.'

Questions explored include:

Is it possible for a mind to be free from yesterday and from belief?

How can an individual, who is part of the system, get outside the system in order to observe it and himself?

Do the younger generation have a thirst for awareness and self-knowledge?

You have been critical of religions. Could you tell me your own particular outlook on religion?

What do you make of death?

More than 40 years after you dissolved the Order of the Star, how would you summarise your aims?

The Krishnamurti Podcast - Ep. 7 - Krishnamurti with Iris Murdoch 1

Audio - 63 minutes

Summary

First conversation with Iris Murdoch: There is no love where there is self-interest.

Iris Murdoch was a well-known novelist and philosopher. Her books explore themes such as good and evil, morality, and the power of the unconscious. They emphasise the inner lives of individuals, in the tradition of Dostoyevski and Tolstoy, whilst her philosophical works reinterpret Aristotle and Plato.

In this first conversation, Krishnamurti and Iris Murdoch inquire into love, discovering that love is not desire or pleasure; love is not the opposite of hate; love has no relationship to jealousy; and that love can never bring conflict.

Summary

Second conversation with Iris Murdoch: What do we mean by conditioning?

Iris Murdoch was a Booker prize winning novelist and philosopher. Her many books include The Bell, The Black Prince, and The Sea.

In this second conversation, Krishnamurti and Iris Murdoch look at why we are fragmented, how our way of thinking and acting is comparatively like the rest of mankind, and that we are the rest of humanity because we all suffer. Krishnamurti states that when there is love, there is truth and beauty.

The Krishnamurti Podcast - Ep. 9 - Krishnamurti with David Shainberg

Audio - 62 minutes

Summary

Memory, thought and the illusion of continuity.

Shainberg trained at the American Institute for Psychoanalysis and worked in New York. He was a leading force behind the integration of eastern and western philosophies in the understanding of consciousness and experience. Shainberg was the first to bring psychoanalysts and eastern spiritual leaders together. He retired from practice in 1981 in order to devote more time to painting.

Recorded in New York in 1983, the conversation between Krishnamurti and Shainberg inquires into why illusion and thought have such power.

What can a person do for another who is caught up in their illusions?

Why do human beings give importance to their own self-centred activity?

The very idea of protecting oneself brings about isolation.

The 'me' is not something separate from memory. Memory is the only thing that continues, but represents something that is dead, finished.

Our psyche is being programmed by ideologies, which have been put together by thought.

The Krishnamurti Podcast - Ep. 10 - Krishnamurti with Huston Smith

Audio - 62 minutes

Summary

Authority is Destructive.

Huston Smith is widely regarded as one of the world's most influential figures in religious studies. He was professor of philosophy at MIT and later professor of religious studies at Berkeley, where he met with Krishnamurti in 1968. Smith's works include: The Worlds Religions, which has sold more than three million copies, Tales of Wonder, and the PBS television series The Wisdom of Faith.

Subjects in this podcast include:

Is it possible to live with total lucidity in this confused world?

To have clarity, freedom from authority is essential.

To be a light to yourself you must deny every other light, however great that light be.

As long as we accept violence, we perpetuates fear and accept authority.

The moment you ask 'how' you move away from the central fact of learning.

To learn about something you must face it.

At the moment of fear there is neither the observer nor the observed.

Thought can never be free because it is the response of the past.

The Krishnamurti Podcast - Ep. 13 - Krishnamurti interviewed by Oliver Hunkin

Audio - 27 minutes

Summary

Oliver Hunkin was head of religious programmes at the BBC, where he revolutionised the format. He was also an author and cartoonist. In his memoirs he wrote: 'We have to admit there is an air of antique unreality about organised religion. The majority of people do not see the point of it. Have we lost track of the fact that religion is a specific experience rather than a system of dogma?' Indeed, he had a revelatory spiritual experience one evening whilst driving, later saying: 'I felt totally at one with the landscape, and with myself, and with all creation. The memory of it has affected my attitude to life ever since'.

This interview with Krishnamurti was recorded at Brockwood Park in 1970. In the conversation, Krishnamurti states that authority has crippled the mind, religiously and inwardly. The authority of belief, imposed by religions, destroys the discovery of reality. One relies on authority because one is afraid to stand alone.

To understand fear one must also understand pleasure, as they are two sides of the same coin.

Are we seeing each other with an image?

There is love only when I have understood myself and so in myself there is no fragmentation, anger, ambition or greed.

Effort is a contradiction of energies.

A meditative mind is a very silent mind.

The Krishnamurti Podcast - Ep. 21 - Krishnamurti with Keith Berwick 1

Audio - 28 minutes

Summary

Keith Berwick is a four-time Emmy Award winning television broadcaster, and senior fellow of the Aspen Institute. His career also includes historian, educator, newspaper publisher and editor. He lives in Santa Barbara, California.

This first interview was recorded in Los Angeles in 1981. Berwick begins by asking: Why, in 1929, Krishnamurti gave up being the head of The Order of the Star.

Other themes include:

What is the major theme of the teachings?

The fundamental issue is whether the human condition, with all its misery, anxiety and sorrow can be changed.

We don't realise that our consciousness is the common ground on which we all stand; we think we are separate.

There is nothing sacred in what thought has created.

How does one achieve right action, right relationship?

If you have no image you can never be hurt.

Freedom is to be free from the image-building machinery, which is thought.

Summary

Keith Berwick is a four-time Emmy Award winning television broadcaster, and senior fellow of the Aspen Institute. His career also includes historian, educator, newspaper publisher and editor. He lives in Santa Barbara, California.

This second interview was recorded in Los Angeles in 1983, two years after the first. Themes include: What is a human being? What is an individual?

Clarity can only come into being when there is no confusion.

One must have physical security, but it is being denied because we think in terms of tribalism.

Disorder creates authority.

Ambition, jealousy, desire and pleasure are not love.

What is intelligence? What is thinking?

Conscious meditation is determination, not meditation. To meditate you must understand relationship.

What is the root of desire?

Is there another instrument than thought? If thought has its right place, then you can look.

Summary

Eric Robson is a broadcaster, author and documentary film maker, based in the UK where he also farms. For 25 years he chaired Gardner's Question Time.

This 1984 conversation was part of a television series he hosted, called Revelations.

Questions Robson asks Krishnamurti include:

Did you ever believe, as the people who were sponsoring you believed, that you were some sort of messiah?

Can you explain why you are so positively against organised religion?

Is your system rooted in any religion?

How do you strip away conditioning?

Is there only one truth or are there many truths?

When you approach the pathless land of truth, do you have to do anything with that truth?

Is it possible for everyone to achieve truth?

You said that the world can only change through personal transformation, and yet the world is sliding to the edge of a black abyss. Won't personal transformation simply come too late?

His interview with Krishnamurti took place in Malibu, California in 1972. Subjects include: what brings about receptivity?

Speaking to the unconscious.

The little self and the big self.

How Krishnamurti's teachings work.

Myth

The destruction of the planet.

Sleep.

Kundalini.

The Krishnamurti Podcast - Ep. 31 - Krishnamurti with Donald Ingram Smith 1

Audio - 54 minutes

Summary

This conversation between Krishnamurti and Donald Ingram Smith, entitled 'Awareness is a mirror in which the movement of thought is perceived', was recorded in Ojai, California in 1977.

Krishnamurti asks whether all of consciousness is made up of its content.

Can thought be aware of itself?

Is whatever thought has created reality?

Intelligence is not a product of thought.

Thought has limited itself, made itself a fragment.

Attention is the summation of all energy.

Donald Ingram Smith was a well-known Australian Broadcasting Corporation (ABC) broadcaster from Sydney. For many years he was involved with the recording of Krishnamurti's talks in Australia and India. He also hosted a radio programme on Krishnamurti. Ingram Smith first met Krishnamurti in 1949 and his memoirs of the times he spent with Krishnamurti through to his death are published in the book Creative Happiness: A Journey with J. Krishnamurti.

Audio - 32 minutes

Summary

This interview by Wilfred Thomas with Krishnamurti took place at the recently-purchased Brockwood Park in Hampshire. It was recorded for Australian radio.

Questions asked include:

How old were you when you first heard the theosophists' plans for you?

When did you first have doubts about the pattern they had laid down for you?

How are you reaching younger people?

Do you think it is possible that humanity, instead of breaking up into national groups and races, will merge into one?

What is your definition of love?

What do you think happens when the body dies, reincarnation?

You now have three institutions. Are they maintained by subscriptions?

Wilfred Thomas lived in Australia and then London. He began his career as a singer and later moved on to presenting and acting for television and radio.

Past

The Krishnamurti Podcast - Ep. 44 - Can we live without the burden of a thousand yesterdays? - Krishnamurti with Pupul Jayakar 6

Audio - 68 minutes

Summary

This second conversation between Krishnamurti and Pupul Jayakar from 1982 was recorded at Brockwood Park. They ask:

Is it possible to keep the mind very young, and yet ancient?

What is consciousness?

Is it possible to completely end the whole content of my consciousness, of human consciousness, which has grown through millennia?

Can the brain ever be free from its own bondage?

Is it possible to look at life as a whole, without fragmentation?

Pupul Jayakar, was a trustee of Krishnamurti Foundation India, and for decades was a friend of Krishnamurti's. She helped publish many of his books in India, along with writing a biography which was published soon after his death. Her other books include The Earth Mother, The Buddha, and God is Not a Full-Stop.

Audio - 75 minutes

Summary

'Relationship, if we allow it, can be a process of self-revelation; but, since we do not allow it, relationship becomes merely a gratifying activity. As long as the mind uses relationship for its own security, that relationship is bound to create confusion and antagonism.'

This week's podcast has two sections.

The first extract (2:14) is from Krishnamurti's first talk in Ojai 1973, titled 'A life in which there is no conflict in relationship'.

The second extract (1:02:55) is from the second talk in Ojai 1949, titled 'Right relationship'.

Religion

The Krishnamurti Podcast - Ep. 16 - Beyond organised religion - Krishnamurti with David O'Hanlon

Audio - 89 minutes

Summary

Daniel O'Hanlon was a Jesuit priest and respected theologian. He taught at Marymount University in Los Angeles and for more than 30 years at the Jesuit School of Theology in Berkeley. He had many contacts in other religions, particularly of Asia, and included aspects of these religions in his teaching. Interested in integration of religions, in 1984 he published Integration of Christian Practices: A Western Christian Looks East.

This conversation with Krishnamurti, recorded in Malibu, California in 1972, asks whether organised religion brings about real depth of understanding.

Does the past have any value in coming upon something new?

Can the mind empty itself of the pettiness of what man has put together?

Thought can be used legitimately and illegitimately.

Krishnamurti urges us to find out if there is something beyond tradition and myth.

Audio - 60 minutes

Summary

'Religion is not the authoritarian, accepted form of religion, the state religion, the religion of belief, of faith, of dogma, of rituals, of worshipping a symbol.'

This week's episode on Religion has five sections.

The first extract (2:24) is from Krishnamurti's sixth talk in Ojai 1982, titled 'What is religion?'

The second extract (19:07) is from the fourth talk in Madras 1974, titled 'Religion is the core of a new culture'.

The third extract (33:38) is from Krishnamurti's second talk in London 1982, titled 'The religious mind'.

The fourth extract (47:31) is from the sixth talk in Saanen 1984, titled 'The religious mind is in a state of creation'.

The final short extract (54:29) is from a recording by Krishnamurti in Ojai 1984, titled 'Religion is a form of science'. This recording made for the book 'Krishnamurti to Himself' is an exclusive to this podcast and has not been made available before now.

Religion/Meditation

The Krishnamurti Podcast - Ep. 49 - Religion and Meditation - Krishnamurti with Alain Naude 7

Audio - 45 minutes

Summary

This conversation between Krishnamurti and Alain Naude was recorded in Malibu, California, in 1972. Subjects include:

Is there any connection between the supernatural and religion?

Is a religious life to lead a good life?

A religious life is a life in which the self is not.

We get caught in the so-called mysterious. But when the self is not, there is a greater, vaster mystery.

Self-knowing is much more important than acquiring some kind of power.

What place has meditation in religious life?

Meditation is not control or a practice, it is not an effort to achieve an experience or to remain in a particular state of consciousness.

If the self is, the religious life is not. Can one dissolve the self?

Why are certain human beings entrenched in the myth of Jesus or Krishna?

Attachment destroys freedom.

Where there is freedom there is joy. It is that quality of mind that has this sense of joy and freedom that perceives.

Meditation means freedom and joy to observe, without any attachment or partial perception.

Alain Naude was Krishnamurti's private secretary in the 1960s. He met Krishnamurti in 1963

whilst a music lecturer and concert pianist. He gave up his teaching and performing in 1964 to work with Krishnamurti. Fluent in several languages, he was very helpful at international gatherings and in attracting younger audiences to Krishnamurti's talks, at a time of cultural change in the West.

Sacred

The Krishnamurti Podcast - Ep. 30 - A feeling for something sacred - Krishnamurti with David Bohm

Audio - 94 minutes

Summary

David Bohm's contact with Krishnamurti began in the early 60s and continued into the 80s. Their dialogues are far-reaching and profound. Over 30 audios and videos are available on our YouTube channel, and are published in the books Truth and Actuality, The Transformation of Man, and The Ending of Time.

Recorded in 1981 in Ojai, California, this conversation explores the sacred, with Krishnamurti saying that there is a sacred origin which gives one tremendous passion and energy. He asks:

Is anyone willing to totally abandon everything that thought has created, including the 'me'?

Is it possible to live a daily life in the modern world without any identification?

How am I to educate myself to have no shocks of any kind?

Only a brain free from shocks can find the origin.

The brain must be always in a state of movement without identification, like a river. Then it cannot be shocked.

Self/Stepping out of the stream of

The Krishnamurti Podcast - Ep. 39 - Stepping out of the stream of the self - Krishnamurti with Alain Naude 5

Audio - 83 minutes

Summary

This conversation between Krishnamurti and Naude was recorded in Malibu in 1972. They ask: Is there in us a place where there is no corruption, where there is real, absolute peace and order?

The stream of vulgarity in the world has its source in the self, 'the me', the ego.

When there is no self, there is a responsibility for humanity.

What is the relationship between this stream, the self which is perpetuating the stream, and the unknown?

How is one who is in the stream to understand instantly, without going through the evolutionary process?

One steps out of the stream if one denies time, in the sense of becoming, being, achieving, comparing.

Can the mind, without any motive, negate the self?

Alain Naude was Krishnamurti's private secretary in the 1960s. He met Krishnamurti in 1963 whilst a music lecturer and concert pianist. He gave up his teaching and performing in 1964 to work with Krishnamurti. Fluent in several languages, he was very helpful at international

Space/Inner

The Krishnamurti Podcast - Ep. 20 - Inner space - Krishnamurti with Jacob Needleman 2

Audio - 64 minutes

Summary

Jacob Needleman is Professor of Philosophy at San Francisco State University and former Director of the Center for the Study of New Religions at Berkeley. He is the author of many books, including The Heart of Philosophy, Money and the Meaning of Life, Time and the Soul, and I Am Not I.

This second conversation with Krishnamurti was recorded in Malibu, California in 1971.

Questions that come up in the conversation include: Is it possible to be free of the centre, so that the centre doesn't create space around itself and build a wall?

Can the centre be still?

Can consciousness empty itself of its content?

Is love within the field of consciousness?

Are there environments which are conducive to liberation?

Teacher/Role of

The Krishnamurti Podcast - Ep. 19 - The role of the teacher - Krishnamurti with Jacob Needleman 1

Audio - 60 minutes

Summary

Jacob Needleman is Professor of Philosophy at San Francisco State University and former Director of the Center for the Study of New Religions at Berkeley. He is the author of many books, including The Wisdom of Love, Time and the Soul, Why Can't We Be Good?, and Necessary Wisdom. He popularised the term 'new religious movements' and was honoured by the New York Open Center in 2006.

This first conversation with Krishnamurti was recorded in Malibu, California in 1971. It forms the opening chapter of the classic book, The Awakening of Intelligence.

Subjects discussed include: the spiritual revolution among young people, hope of a new flowering for civilisation, and whether one can go into oneself at tremendous depths and find out everything, without asking for help.

If there were no books or gurus, what we do?

Is effort needed to reach God, enlightenment or truth?

Why do we divide energy?

The observer comes into being in wanting to change 'what is'.

The state of not-knowing is intelligence.

Thought/Consciousness

The Krishnamurti Podcast - Ep. 24 - Thought cannot comprehend the totality of consciousness - Krishnamurti with Pupul Jayakar 2

Audio - 88 minutes

Summary

Pupul Jayakar was a trustee of Krishnamurti Foundation India, and for decades was a friend of Krishnamurti's. She helped publish many of his books in India, along with writing a biography which was published soon after his death. Her other books include The Earth Mother, The Buddha and God is Not a Full-Stop.

This second conversation was recorded in the summer of 1978, at Brockwood. Krishnamurti asks: What does the word 'conscious' mean to you?, saying that thought can never be aware of the total content of consciousness.

Can the mind perceive the totality?

Is there a love or a quality which is not part of consciousness?

Is it possible to observe with all one's senses?

Is there a totally different dimension to consciousness, not invented by thought? Can this be discovered?

What quality is necessary to move out of the circle of consciousness?

How can we know order when we live in total disorder?

When thought is completely, absolutely still, there is an action.

Thought/Intelligence

The Krishnamurti Podcast - Ep. 35 - Thought cannot investigate into intelligence - Krishnamurti with Asit Chandmal

Audio - 70 minutes

Summary

This conversation took place at Brockwood Park in 1982.

Krishnamurti asks: Do you accept that intelligence is not the product of thought?

What do you have you left when you don't use the brain to inquire?

What is not contaminated by thought?

Can your brain observe something whole without any kind of fragmentation?

Krishnamurti and Asit Chandmal were friends for many years, and Krishnamurti would often stay with him when in Bombay. Chandmal studied engineering in London, where he later taught mathematical economics, before becoming finance director at Tata Motors. His interest in computing led to Chandmal's involvement with many Silicon Valley start-ups. A trustee of the Krishnamurti Foundation India, he was also a keen photographer and in 1985 published the One Thousand Moons, a book of photographs illustrating a year in Krishnamurti's life.
